PLANT STYLING

It is important to think about where you will place your plants in your home; you do not want to overcrowd your plants as they need room to grow, but at the same time you do not want them looking lonely. Do you have a bright, sunny window? That is a little basic? Perhaps place Monstera deliciosa (Swiss cheese plant) cuttings along it to add some quick greenery as they are rapid growers when in the right environment. See page 144 for more inspiration on dressing your windowsill.

Plants tend to thrive when they are together, so it is nice to create a plant area made up of different sized and shaped pots and plants. Again, a windowsill is a good spot for this, but you can put a little plant gang virtually anywhere – just make sure the plants you choose are suited for that space (pages 21–24 and 47).

A key way to pick out different plants that look good together is to look for different shapes and textures that complement each other; for example, do not put bushy, clinging bromeliads together, unless you are going for a rainbow effect. It is nice to pick out a blue-grey tone from a Philodendron hastatum (peach-leaf philodendron) and match it with a Euphorbia lac- ina (white ghost cactus) and a Devilla catesbeiana (hare's foot fern), as the colours work harmoniously together.

The rest of this chapter will show you various ways you can style your plants – whether by simply switching up the types of pot you use, or by displaying your plants in more ambitious ways.

How to: Arrange plants as table decorations

When you are entertaining, it is nice to decorate your table with some greenery. Depending on how much time and space you have, you can create a beautiful yet simple look with potted plants, or you can really go for it and make more outrageous holders to display your foliage.

Here are some ideas for you to try:

1. Set an odd number of different but complementary plants in pretty pots running in a straight line down the middle of the table. If you do not have much space down the centre of your table you can use mini potted plants – perhaps some mini cacti or succulents – then cut some
